European Crypto Bank announces its participation in the conference: What future for Initial Coin Offerings? Paris-Dauphine University Wednesday, March 14, 2018 at 6 PM

Paris, January 30, 2018 - The ICO (Initial Coin Offerings) is a new financing model appeared in 2013 which has been developing spectacularly during the last four yeays. Thus, over the first nine months of 2017, 148 projects, totaling $ 2.2 billion in fundraising, were funded through this new issuance technique.

ICOs are companies backed by blockchain technology that finance their activities via tokens. While this technique has many advantages (ease of implementation, speed of the process), it also raises a number of fears about the validity of funded projects, the protection of subscribers, the risk of money laundering., ...

During this conference, Olivier Forgues, CEO of European Crypto Bank, will answer all the questions of the students of the Master 225 of Corporate Finance and Financial Engineering from Paris Dauphine University and will share with them his experience as the founder of the ECB project.

European Crypto Bank launches its Pre ICO on February, 1st, 2018 on the blockchain.
